Calvin Cordozar Broadus Jr. (born October 20, 1971), known professionally as Snoop Dogg, is an American rapper, singer, record producer, record executive, songwriter, and actor. A key figure in West Coast hip-hop, he helped define G-funk and gangsta rap, and is often regarded as one of the greatest rappers of all time.<sup>[5][6][7]</sup> Known for his signature drawled delivery and melodic flow, his lyrics frequently address social issues such as recreational drug use and gun violence.<sup>[8][9]</sup>

He rose to prominence in 1992 through his collaborations with Dr. Dre, first on the single "Deep Cover" and later on The Chronic, including "Nuthin' but a 'G' Thang". Produced by Dr. Dre, his debut album Doggystyle (1993) debuted atop the Billboard 200 with 806,000 copies sold in its first week. The album spawned the hit singles "What's My Name?" and "Gin and Juice", later receiving quadruple platinum certification by the Recording Industry Association of America (RIAA). His second album, Tha Doggfather (1996), also debuted at number one.

After leaving Death Row Records, Snoop Dogg signed with Master P's No Limit Records, and saw continued success with his albums Da Game Is to Be Sold, Not to Be Told (1998), No Limit Top Dogg (1999), and Tha Last Meal (2000). His album R&G (Rhythm & Gangsta): The Masterpiece (2004) spawned the single "Drop It Like It's Hot" (featuring Pharrell), his first Billboard Hot 100 number one. In later years, he adopted the alias Snoop Lion, under which he released a reggae album, Reincarnated (2013), and a namesake documentary film about his experience in Jamaica. The album was followed by the Pharrell-produced Bush (2015) and the gospel album Bible of Love (2018).<sup>[10]</sup> In 2022, he acquired Death Row Records from MNRK Music Group and released BODR (2022).

Snoop Dogg has sold over 35 million records worldwide.<sup>[11][12]</sup> In 2022, he co-headlined the Super Bowl LVI halftime show, earning a Primetime Emmy Award. He has received several accolades including seventeen Grammy Award nominations, two Sports Emmy Awards and a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.<sup>[13]</sup> Outside of music, he has appeared in numerous films and media, including serving as a coach on The Voice.

Early life

Calvin Cordozar Broadus Jr. was born on October 20, 1971, in Long Beach, California, to Beverly Tate (1951–2021) and Vernell Varnado.<sup>[14][15]</sup> Varnado, who was a Vietnam War veteran, singer, and mail carrier, left the family only three months after Snoop Dogg's birth, and thus he was named after his stepfather, Calvin Cordozar Broadus Sr. (1948–1984).<sup>[16][15]</sup> His biological father remained largely absent from his life. As a boy, his mother nicknamed him "Snoopy" due to his love for and likeness to the cartoon character from Peanuts.<sup>[17]</sup> He was the second of his mother's three sons.

Snoop Dogg was raised Baptist and began singing and playing piano at Golgotha Trinity Baptist Church when he was very young.<sup>[18][19]</sup> His mother, a member of the church choir, was one of his "prime musical influences" growing up and introduced him to old-school R&B music.<sup>[20]</sup> In his youth, Snoop Dogg sold candy, delivered newspapers, and bagged groceries. Snoop Dogg was described as having been a dedicated student and enthusiastic churchgoer, active in choir and football.<sup>[21]</sup>

In sixth grade, Snoop Dogg began rapping.<sup>[18]</sup> He would frequently rap in school, as he recalled: "When I rapped in the hallways at school I would draw such a big crowd that the principal would think there was a fight going on. It made me begin to realize that I had a gift. I could tell that my raps interested people and that made me interested in myself".<sup>[21]</sup>

In his teenage years, Snoop Dogg began engaging in unlawful activities and joining gangs, despite his mother's preventive efforts.<sup>[21]</sup> He was a member of the Rollin' 20s Crips gang in the Eastside neighborhood of Long Beach;<sup>[22]</sup> in 1993, however, he denied the frequent police and media reports by saying that he never joined a gang.<sup>[18]</sup> Shortly after graduating from Long Beach Polytechnic High School in 1989, he was arrested for possession of cocaine, and for the next three years was frequently incarcerated, including at Wayside Jail.<sup>[23]</sup> With his two cousins, Nate Dogg and Lil' ½ Dead, and friend Warren G, he recorded homemade tapes, with one titled Over the Counter attracting some label interest. The four called their group 213 after the area code of their hometown Long Beach, and they recorded their first four-song demo at their local VIP Records store.<sup>[24]</sup> One of Snoop's early solo freestyles over "Hold On" by En Vogue was on a mixtape that fortuitously wound up with Dr. Dre; the influential producer was so impressed by the sample that he called Snoop Dogg to audition in 1991 for his label Death Row Records (then known as Future Shock). Former N.W.A affiliate, American rapper Tracy Lynn Curry, better known as The D.O.C., taught him to structure his lyrics and separate the themes into verses, hooks, and choruses.<sup>[25]</sup>

Music career

1991–1997: Death Row, Doggystyle, and Tha Doggfather

When he began recording, the young rapper took the stage name Snoop Doggy Dogg. He was introduced to Dr. Dre by Warren G, who gave him Snoop Dogg's cassette tape. Snoop Dogg then signed with Dre's label Future Shock Records (which later became known as Death Row Records).<sup>[26]</sup> Dr. Dre began working with him, first on the theme song of the 1992 film Deep Cover, and then on Dr. Dre's debut solo album The Chronic, along with the other members of his former starting group, Tha Dogg Pound. This intense exposure played a considerable part in making Snoop Dogg's debut album, Doggystyle, the critical and commercial success that it was.<sup>[23]</sup>

Fueling the ascendance of West Coast G-funk hip-hop, the singles "Who Am I (What's My Name)?" and "Gin and Juice" reached the top ten most-played songs in the United States, and the album stayed on the Billboard charts for several months.<sup>[23]</sup> Gangsta rap became the center of arguments about censorship and labeling, with Snoop Dogg often used as an example of violent and misogynistic musicians.<sup>[27]</sup> Unlike many of the harder-edged gangsta rap artists, Snoop Dogg seemed to show his softer side, according to music journalist Chuck Philips. Rolling Stone music critic Touré asserted that Snoop Dogg had a relatively soft vocal delivery compared to other rappers: "Snoop's vocal style is part of what distinguishes him: where many rappers scream, figuratively and literally, he speaks softly".<sup>[18]</sup> Doggystyle, much like The Chronic, featured a host of rappers signed to or affiliated with the Death Row label, including Daz Dillinger, Kurupt, Nate Dogg, and others.

In 1993, Snoop Dogg was charged with first-degree murder for the shooting death of a rival gang member, who was actually killed by Snoop Dogg's bodyguard.<sup>[28]</sup> Snoop Dogg was acquitted on February 20, 1996, and the case was finally closed in 2024.<sup>[29]</sup> According to Snoop Dogg, after he was acquitted, he did not want to continue living the "gangsta" lifestyle, because he felt that continuing his behavior would result in his assassination or a prison term.<sup>[30]</sup> A short film about Snoop Dogg's murder trial, Murder Was the Case, was released in 1994, along with an accompanying soundtrack. On July 6, 1995, Doggy Style Records, Inc., a record label founded by Snoop Dogg, was registered with the California Secretary of State as business entity number C1923139.<sup>[31]</sup>

After his acquittal, Snoop Dogg and the mother of his son, along with their kennel of 20 pit bulls, moved into a 5,000-square-foot (460 m<sup>2</sup>) home in the hills of Claremont, California, and by August 1996 Doggy Style Records, a subsidiary of Death Row Records, signed the Gap Band's Charlie Wilson as one of its first artists.<sup>[32]</sup> He collaborated with fellow rap artist Tupac Shakur on the 1996 single "2 of Amerikaz Most Wanted". This was one of Shakur's last songs released while alive; he was shot on September 7, 1996, in Las Vegas, dying six days later.

Snoop Dogg in 1995 ☐

By the time Snoop Dogg's second album, Tha Doggfather, was released in November 1996, the price of appearing to be a gang member "living the gangsta life" had become very evident. Among the many notable hip-hop industry deaths and convictions were the death of Snoop Dogg's friend and labelmate Tupac Shakur and the racketeering indictment of Death Row co-founder Suge Knight.<sup>[23]</sup> Dr. Dre had left Death Row earlier in 1996 because of a contract dispute, so Snoop Dogg co-produced Tha Doggfather with Daz Dillinger and DJ Pooh.

Snoop Dogg performing in 1998 ☐

This album featured a distinct change of style from Doggystyle, and the leadoff single, "Snoop's Upside Ya Head", featured a collaboration with Charlie Wilson. The album sold reasonably well but was not as successful as its predecessor. Tha Doggfather had a somewhat softer approach to the G-funk style. Snoop Dogg was scheduled to release an EP titled Doggumentary on July 8, 1997, but the album had been canceled.<sup>[33]</sup> Despite this, a music video was released for its projected first single, Midnight Love.<sup>[33]</sup> Snoop Dogg realized that he was subject to an ironclad time-based contract (i.e., that Death Row practically owned anything he produced for a number of years), and refused to produce anymore tracks for Suge Knight other than the insulting "Fuck Death Row" until his contract expired.<sup>[22]</sup> In an interview with Neil Strauss in 1998, Snoop Dogg said that though he had been given lavish gifts by his former label, they had withheld his royalty payments.<sup>[34]</sup>

Stephen Thomas Erlewine of Allmusic said that after Tha Doggfather, Snoop Dogg began "moving away from his gangsta roots toward a calmer lyrical aesthetic":<sup>[23]</sup> for instance, Snoop Dogg participated in the 1997 Lollapalooza concert tour, which featured mainly alternative rock music. Troy J. Augusto of Variety noted that Snoop's set at Lollapalooza attracted "much dancing, and, strangely, even a small mosh pit" in the audience.<sup>[35]</sup>

1998–2006: Signing with No Limit and continued success

Snoop Dogg signed with Master P's No Limit Records (distributed by Priority/EMI Records) in March 1998 and debuted on the label with Da Game Is to Be Sold, Not to Be Told later that year. He said at the time that "Snoop Dogg is universal so he can fit into any camp—especially a camp that knows how to handmade shit[;] [a]nd, No Limit hand makes material. They make material fittin' to the artist and they know what type of shit Snoop Dogg is supposed to be on. That's why it's so tight". <sup>[sic]</sup><sup>[36]</sup> His other albums on No Limit were No Limit Top Dogg in 1999 (selling over 1,510,000 copies) and Tha Last Meal in 2000 (selling over 2,100,000).<sup>[23]</sup> In 1999, his autobiography, Tha Doggfather, was published.

In 2002, he released the album Paid tha Cost to Be da Bo$$, on Priority/Capitol/EMI, selling over 1,310,000 copies. The album featured the hit singles "From tha Chuuch to da Palace" and "Beautiful", featuring guest vocals by Pharrell. In the same year, he featured in the remix of "Welcome to Atlanta" by Jermaine Dupri. By this stage in his career, Snoop Dogg had left behind his "gangster" image and embraced a "pimp" image.

In June 2004, Snoop Dogg signed to Geffen Records/Star Trak Entertainment, both distributed by Interscope Records; Star Trak is headed by producer duo the Neptunes,<sup>[37]</sup> which produced several tracks for Snoop's 2004 release R&G (Rhythm & Gangsta): The Masterpiece. "Drop It Like It's Hot" (featuring Pharrell), the first single released from the album, was a hit and became Snoop Dogg's first single to reach number one. His third release was "Signs", featuring Justin Timberlake and Charlie Wilson, which entered the UK chart at No. 2. This was his highest entry ever in the UK chart. The album sold 1,730,000 copies in the U.S. alone, and most of its singles were heavily played on radio and television. Snoop Dogg joined Warren G and Nate Dogg to form the group 213 and released The Hard Way in 2004. Debuting at No.4 on the Billboard 200 and No.1 on the Top R&B/Hip-Hop Albums, it included the single "Groupie Luv". Snoop Dogg appeared in the music video for Korn's "Twisted Transistor" along with fellow rappers Lil Jon, Xzibit, and David Banner.

Snoop Dogg appeared on two tracks from Ice Cube's 2006 album Laugh Now, Cry Later, including "Go to Church", and on several tracks on Tha Dogg Pound's Cali Iz Active the same year. His song "Real Talk" was leaked on the Internet in the summer of 2006 and a video was later released on the Internet. "Real Talk" was dedicated to former Crips leader Stanley "Tookie" Williams and a diss to Arnold Schwarzenegger, the governor of California at the time. Two other singles on which Snoop Dogg made a guest performance were "Keep Bouncing" by Too $hort (also with will.i.am of the Black Eyed Peas) and "Gangsta Walk" by Coolio.

Snoop's 2006 album Tha Blue Carpet Treatment debuted on the Billboard 200 at No.5 and sold over 850,000 copies. The album and the second single "That's That Shit" featuring R. Kelly were well received by critics. In the album, he collaborated in a video with E-40 and other West Coast rappers on the single "Candy (Drippin' Like Water)".

Artistry

Snoop Dogg had been mainly described as a hip-hop,<sup>[168][169]</sup> West Coast hip-hop,<sup>[168][170]</sup> G-funk,<sup>[23][171]</sup> and gangsta rap artist.<sup>[23]</sup> Kool Moe Dee ranks Snoop Dogg at No. 33 in his book There's a God on the Mic, and says he has "an ultra-smooth, laidback delivery"<sup>[172]</sup> and "flavor-filled melodic rhyming".<sup>[173]</sup>

Peter Shapiro describes Snoop Dogg's delivery as a "molasses drawl"<sup>[174]</sup> and AllMusic notes his "drawled, laconic rhyming" style.<sup>[23]</sup> Kool Moe Dee refers to Snoop's use of vocabulary, saying he "keeps it real simple ... he simplifies it and he's effective in his simplicity".<sup>[175]</sup>

Snoop Dogg is known to freestyle some of his lyrics on the spot – in the book How to Rap, Lady of Rage says, "When I worked with him earlier in his career, that's how created his stuff... he would freestyle, he wasn't a writer then, he was a freestyler",<sup>[176]</sup> and the D.O.C. states, "Snoop's [rap] was a one take willy, but his shit was all freestyle. He hadn't written nothing down. He just came in and started busting. The song was 'Tha Shiznit'—that was all freestyle. He started busting and when we got to the break, Dre cut the machine off, did the chorus and told Snoop to come back in. He did that throughout the record. That's when Snoop was in the zone then."<sup>[177]</sup>

Peter Shapiro says that Snoop Dogg debuted on "Deep Cover" with a "shockingly original flow – which sounded like a Slick Rick born in South Carolina instead of South London"<sup>[178]</sup> and adds that he "showed where his style came from by covering Slick Rick's 'La Di Da Di'".<sup>[174]</sup> Referring to Snoop's flow, Kool Moe Dee calls him "one of the smoothest, funkier flow-ers in the game".<sup>[173]</sup> How to Rap also notes that Snoop Dogg is known to use syncopation in his flow to give it a laidback quality,<sup>[179]</sup> as well as 'linking with rhythm' in his compound rhymes,<sup>[180]</sup> using alliteration,<sup>[181]</sup> and employing a "sparse" flow with good use of pauses.<sup>[182]</sup>

Snoop Dogg listed his favorite rap albums for Hip Hop Connection: 10. Mixmaster Spade, The Genius Is Back 9. Lauryn Hill, The Miseducation of Lauryn Hill 8. Ice Cube, Death Certificate 7. 2Pac, Me Against the World 6. The Notorious B.I.G., Ready to Die 5. N.W.A, Straight Outta Compton 4. Eric B. & Rakim, Paid in Full 3. Slick Rick, The Great Adventures of Slick Rick 2. Snoop Doggy Dogg, Doggystyle 1. Dr. Dre, The Chronic ("It's da illest shit")<sup>[183]</sup>

Personal life

Snoop Dogg married his high school sweetheart, Shante Taylor (née Fuller), on June 14, 1997.<sup>[184]</sup> Shante's brother Jermaine died in 2002 after a standoff with Las Vegas police, during which Snoop Dogg unsuccessfully attempted to reason with him to surrender.<sup>[185]</sup> On May 21, 2004, he filed for divorce from Taylor, citing irreconcilable differences.<sup>[186]</sup> However, the couple renewed vows on January 12, 2008.<sup>[187]</sup> They have three children together: sons Cordé (born August 21, 1994) and Cordell (born February 21, 1997), who quit football to pursue a career as a filmmaker, and daughter Cori (born June 22, 1999).<sup>[188]</sup> Snoop Dogg also has a son from a relationship with Laurie Holmond, Julian Corrie Broadus (born 1998).

He is the first cousin of AEW professional wrestler Mercedes Moné, as well as the fellow 213 member Nathaniel Hale, known professionally as Nate Dogg, who died of congestive heart failure on March 15, 2011.<sup>[189][190]</sup> He has also claimed he is a cousin of R&B singers Brandy and Ray J, though Brandy stated she is unsure if they are actually related.<sup>[191][192]</sup> In 2015, Snoop Dogg became a grandfather, as his eldest son, Cordé Broadus, had a son with his girlfriend, Jessica Kyzer.<sup>[193]</sup> Cordé had another son, who died on September 25, 2019, ten days after birth.<sup>[194]</sup> As of 2025, he has seven grandchildren.<sup>[195]</sup>

Snoop Dogg claimed in a 2006 interview with Rolling Stone magazine that unlike other hip-hop artists who had superficially adopted the pimp persona, he was an actual professional pimp in 2003 and 2004, saying, "That shit was my natural calling and once I got involved with it, it became fun. It was like shootin' layups for me. I was makin' 'em every time".

On October 24, 2021, Snoop's mother, Beverly Tate, died.<sup>[196]</sup>

Snoop Dogg in August 2009

On August 24, 2023, Boldy James revealed that he is related to Snoop Dogg through word of his family.<sup>[197][4]</sup>

On February 16, 2024, Snoop's brother, Bing Worthington, died at the age of 44.<sup>[198]</sup>

On January 31, 2026, Snoop's 10-month-old granddaughter, Codi Dreaux, died.<sup>[199][200]</sup>

Sports

Snoop Dogg is an avid sports fan, including hometown teams Los Angeles Dodgers, Los Angeles Lakers, and USC Trojans, as well as the Pittsburgh Steelers.<sup>[201]</sup> He has stated that he began following the Steelers in the 1970s while watching the team with his grandfather.<sup>[202]</sup> He is also a fan of the Las Vegas Raiders, Los Angeles Rams, and Dallas Cowboys, often wearing a No. 5 jersey, and has been seen at Raiders training camps.<sup>[203]</sup> He has shown affection for the New England Patriots, having been seen performing at Gillette Stadium.<sup>[204][205]</sup> He is an avid ice hockey fan,<sup>[206]</sup> sporting jerseys from the NHL's Los Angeles Kings, Pittsburgh Penguins, Toronto Maple Leafs, and the Boston Bruins as well at the AHL's Springfield Indians in his 1994 music video "Gin and Juice".

Snoop Dogg has frequented Los Angeles Kings games. On his reality show Snoop Dogg's Father Hood, Snoop Dogg and his family received hockey lessons from the Anaheim Ducks, then returned to the Honda Center to cheer on the Ducks against the Vancouver Canucks in the episode "Snow in da Hood".<sup>[207]</sup> He appeared in the video game NHL 20 as both a guest commentator and a playable character in the "World of Chel" game mode.<sup>[208]</sup>

Snoop Dogg is a certified football coach, and served as head coach of his son Cordell's youth football teams.<sup>[209][210]</sup> Cordell played wide receiver and defensive back at Bishop Gorman High School in Las Vegas, Nevada, Cordell played on the 2014 state championship team, and received football scholarship offers from Southern California, UCLA, Washington, Cal, Oregon State, Duke, and Notre Dame.<sup>[211][212][213][214][215]</sup> Cordell committed and signed a letter of intent to play for UCLA on February 4, 2015.<sup>[216]</sup> On August 14, 2015, UCLA announced that Cordell had left the UCLA football team "to pursue other passions in his life".<sup>[217]</sup>

In 2022, Snoop Dogg signed with the esports organization FaZe Clan, as both a content creator and member of its board of directors.<sup>[218]</sup> In 2023, he resigned from the board of directors.<sup>[156]</sup>

Since 2005, Snoop Dogg has operated a youth football league in the Los Angeles area.<sup>[219]</sup> He is a coach in the league, and one of the seasons he coached was documented in the Netflix documentary Coach Snoop.

As a 2023 April Fools' Day joke, the Pittsburgh Steelers announced that they had signed Snoop Dogg to the roster as a wide receiver.<sup>[220]</sup>

Snoop Dogg is a fan of Celtic F.C., a football club based in Glasgow, Scotland.<sup>[221]</sup>

In 2023, he joined an investment group led by businessman Neko Sparks to help buy the National Hockey League's Ottawa Senators.<sup>[219]</sup>

In June 2024, Snoop Dogg ran in an exhibition 200 meters race alongside former athletes Ato Boldon and Wallace Spearmon at the US track and field Olympic trials in Eugene, Oregon, finishing third in a time of 34.44 seconds.<sup>[222][223]</sup>

On July 23, 2024, Snoop Dogg was named as one of the final torchbearers of the Olympic flame before the opening ceremony at the Paris Olympics.<sup>[224][225]</sup> He carried it through the suburb of Saint-Denis, home to the athletes' village for the Games.<sup>[226][227]</sup>

In December 2025, the United States Olympic and Paralympic Committee announced Snoop Dogg would be Team USA's first-ever honorary coach at the 2026 Winter Olympics to be held in Milan and Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy.<sup>[228][229]</sup>

Religion

Snoop Dogg was raised as a Baptist. He said his faith provided guidance, and he took it along with him everywhere he went in life.<sup>[18][230]</sup> In his 1999 autobiography, he wrote, "These days I look to God to get me through each day, to guide me on my path and to help others along their way. He's taken me this far; I've got no reason to believe He won't be with me for the rest of the ride".<sup>[231]</sup>

In 2009, it was reported that Snoop Dogg was a member of the Nation of Islam. On March 1, he made an appearance at the Nation of Islam's annual Saviours' Day holiday, where he praised minister Louis Farrakhan. Snoop Dogg said he was a member of the Nation, but declined to give the date on which he joined. He also donated $1,000 to the organization.<sup>[232][233][234]</sup>

In 2012, Snoop Dogg converted to the Rastafari movement,<sup>[235][236][237][238]</sup> switched the focus of his music to reggae<sup>[239]</sup> and changed his name to Snoop Lion after a trip to Jamaica. He released a reggae album, Reincarnated, saying, "I have always said I was Bob Marley reincarnated".<sup>[240]</sup> In January 2013, he was criticized by members of the Rastafari community in Jamaica, including reggae artist Bunny Wailer, for engaging in "fraudulent" cultural appropriation as a stunt.<sup>[241][242]</sup> Snoop Dogg later dismissed the claims, stating his beliefs were personal and not up for outside judgment.<sup>[243]</sup>

After releasing Bible of Love in early 2018 and performing in the 33rd Annual Stellar Gospel Music Awards, Snoop Dogg told a TV One interviewer while speaking of his Gospel influences that he "always referred to [his] savior Jesus Christ" on most of his records, and that he had become "a born-again Christian".<sup>[244]</sup> Snoop Dogg reflected his faith by singing "I'd Rather Have Jesus" and posting it on Instagram.<sup>[245][246]</sup>

Charity

In 2005, Snoop Dogg founded the Snoop Youth Football League for at-risk youth in Southern California. In 2018, it was claimed to be the largest youth football organization in Southern California, with 50 teams and more than 1,500 players.<sup>[247][248]</sup> He has since claimed that at least 20 of his former pupils have gone on to play with the NFL.<sup>[249]</sup> Since 2017, he has also run a special-needs division called Snoop Special Stars for anyone 5 years or older with a physical, mental, or developmental disability.<sup>[250][249]</sup>

Snoop Dogg partners with city officials and annually gives away turkeys to the less fortunate in Inglewood, California, at Thanksgiving. He gave away 3000 turkeys in 2016.<sup>[251]</sup> Snoop Dogg was also a judge for the 7th annual Independent Music Awards to support independent artists' careers.<sup>[252]</sup>

Although Snoop Dogg has donated and raised millions of dollars for charitable causes over the years, it is difficult to ascertain the full extent of Snoop's charitable giving, as he is wary that his donations and charitable causes might be seen as publicity stunts for his own image. For example, regarding Snoop Special Stars, he said on LL Cool J's Rock the Bells Radio that he avoided being in videos and photos at first—due to this apprehension—but he acquiesced once he saw the joy the kids and parents were getting by taking photos together.<sup>[253]</sup> Some other known causes that he supports include Children's Hospital Los Angeles, Mothers Against Police Brutality, Habitat for Humanity, Orca Network, Save a Life Foundation, Shriners Hospitals for Children, and The Healing Circle.<sup>[254][255]</sup>

Political views and activism

In 2005, Snoop Dogg spoke at a funeral for Stanley Tookie Williams after he was executed by the state of California.<sup>[256]</sup>

In 2012, Snoop Dogg endorsed Congressman Ron Paul in the Republican presidential primary,<sup>[257]</sup> but later said he would vote for Barack Obama in the general election, and on Instagram gave 10 reasons to vote for Obama (including "He a black nigga", "He's BFFs with Jay-Z", and "Michelle got a fat ass"), and 10 reasons not to vote for Mitt Romney (including "He a white nigga", "That muthafucka's name is Mitt", and "He a ho").<sup>[258]</sup>

In a 2013 interview with The Huffington Post, Snoop Dogg advocated for same-sex marriage, saying: "People can do what they want and as they please".<sup>[259]</sup>

In his keynote address at the 2015 South by Southwest music festival, he blamed Los Angeles's explosion of gang violence in the 1980s on the economic policies of Ronald Reagan, and insinuated that his administration shipped guns and drugs into the area.<sup>[260]</sup>

He endorsed presidential candidate Hillary Clinton on Bravo's Watch What Happens Live in May 2015, saying: "I would love to see a woman in office because I feel like we're at that stage in life to where we need a perspective other than the male's train of thought"<sup>[261]</sup> and "[...] just to have a woman speaking from a global perspective as far as representing America, I'd love to see that. So I'll be voting for Mrs. Clinton".<sup>[262]</sup>

Following the deadly shooting of five police officers in Dallas on July 7, 2016, Snoop Dogg and fellow rapper the Game organized and led a peaceful march to the Los Angeles Police Department headquarters.<sup>[263][264]</sup> The subsequent private meeting with the mayor Eric Garcetti and police chief Charlie Beck, and news conference was, according to Snoop Dogg, "[...] to get some dialogue and the communication going [...]".<sup>[265]</sup> The march and conference were part of an initiative "Operation H.U.N.T.", serving as a police brutality protest in response to the police shooting and killing of two black men, Philando Castile and Alton Sterling,<sup>[266]</sup> whose killing prompted nationwide protests including those that led to the Dallas killing of police officers. Snoop Dogg stated that "We are tired of what is going on and it's communication that is lacking".<sup>[265]</sup> Reports of attendance range between 50 and 100 people.<sup>[263][265][264][267]</sup>

Snoop Dogg and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti speaking at a press conference following the 2016 shooting of Dallas police officers

Snoop Dogg advocates for the defunding of police departments, saying: "We need to start taking that money out of their pocket and put it back into our communities where we can police ourselves".<sup>[268]</sup>

Snoop Dogg has consistently expressed his support for tighter gun control. In 2013, then known as Snoop Lion, he told HuffPost Live: "Politicians, you all got to pay attention, man. This world that we live in, it's so easy to get your hands on a gun. You've got to put some restrictions or ramifications on it. I can go outside right now and buy a gun. Easy. Just like that".<sup>[269]</sup> Additionally, he released a song called "No Guns Allowed" featuring Drake and Cori B in 2013.<sup>[270]</sup>

In 2020, Snoop Dogg endorsed former Vice President Joe Biden for President of the United States.<sup>[271]</sup> In contrast, he said he had "nothing but love and respect for Donald Trump" in January 2024.<sup>[272][273][274]</sup> That November, Snoop Dogg refused to endorse anyone in the presidential election, claiming it was because he doesn't "believe in separating people".<sup>[275]</sup>

In August 2025, Snoop Dogg criticized LGBTQ representation in children's films, saying he was "scared to go to the movies".<sup>[276]</sup> In October 2025, shortly after the controversy caused by his August statement, Snoop Dogg partnered with GLAAD to support Spirit Day, an annual LGBTQ awareness day. The rapper also collaborated with Jeremy Beloate of The Voice on a new song titled "Love is Love", which was featured on his animated children's show Doggyland. In a statement, he said his mission with the projects was "all about love" so as to ensure he was "spreading love and respect for everybody", showing "the next generation that kindness is cool, inclusion is powerful, and love always wins".<sup>[277]</sup>

Cannabis use

Since the start of his career, Snoop Dogg has been an avowed cannabis smoker, making it one of the trademarks of his image. In 2002, he announced he was giving up cannabis for good;<sup>[278]</sup> this did not last long (a situation famously referenced in the 2004 Adam Sandler film 50 First Dates) and in 2013, he claimed to be smoking approximately 80 cannabis blunts a day.<sup>[279]</sup> He has been certified for medical cannabis in California to treat migraines since at least 2007.<sup>[280][281][282]</sup> In 2023, he announced via social media that he was "giving up smoke" after much consideration, but later revealed that it was an ad to promote a smokeless fire pit called SoloStove.<sup>[283][284][285]</sup>

Animal rights

Snoop Dogg regularly appears in real fur garments, especially large coats, for which he attracts criticism from animal welfare charities and younger audiences. In a video podcast in 2012, the rapper asked, "Why doesn't PETA throw paint on a pimp's fur coat".<sup>[286]</sup> In 2014, Snoop Dogg claimed to have become a vegan; however, he has since opted against a complete vegan diet.<sup>[287]</sup> In June 2018, he performed at the Environmental Media Association (EMA) Honors Gala. While he was performing, the logo for vegan brand Beyond Meat was displayed on the screens behind him.<sup>[288]</sup> In 2020, Snoop Dogg invested in vegan food company Original Foods, which makes Pigless Pork Rinds, which he has said are a favorite.<sup>[289]</sup> He is an ambassador for Beyond Meat and lent his name and image as well as financial support for Beyond Meat's Feed a Million+ campaign to provide a million frontline workers with Beyond Meat burgers.<sup>[290][291]</sup>

World record for largest paradise cocktail

At the BottleRock Napa Valley music festival on May 26, 2018, Snoop Dogg, Warren G, Kendall Coleman, Kim Kaechele, and Michael Voltaggio set the Guinness World Record for the largest paradise cocktail. Measuring 550 liters (150 U.S. gal), the "Gin and Juice" drink was mixed from 180 1.75-liter (0.46 U.S. gal) bottles of gin, 156 1-liter (0.26 U.S. gal) bottles of apricot brandy and 28 1-U.S.-gallon (3.8 L) jugs of orange juice.<sup>[292][293][294][295][296][297]</sup>

Criminal

1989–1990: Felony possession of drugs and three-year prison sentence

Shortly after graduating from high school in 1989, Snoop Dogg was arrested for possession of cocaine and for the following three years was frequently in and out of prison.<sup>[23]</sup> In 1990, he was convicted of felony possession of drugs and possession for sale.<sup>[280]</sup>

Mug shot, 1993

1993–1997: Traffic violation, gun possession and guilty plea

In July 1993, Snoop Dogg was stopped for a traffic violation, and a firearm was found by police during a search of his car. In February 1997, he pled guilty to possession of a handgun and was ordered to record three public service announcements, perform 800 hours of community service, pay a $1,000 fine and serve three years' probation.<sup>[298][299][300]</sup>

1993–1996: Murder trial and acquittal

While recording Doggystyle in August 1993, Snoop Dogg was arrested and charged with first-degree murder in connection with the shooting death of Philip Woldemariam, a member of a rival gang, who was actually killed by Snoop Dogg's bodyguard, McKinley Lee, aka Malik.<sup>[28]</sup> Snoop Dogg had been temporarily living in an apartment complex in the Palms neighborhood in the West Los Angeles region, at the intersection of Vinton Avenue and Woodbine Street—the location of the shooting. Both men were charged with murder, as Snoop Dogg was purportedly driving the vehicle from which the gun was fired. Johnnie Cochran defended them.<sup>[301]</sup> Both Snoop Dogg and his bodyguard were acquitted on February 20, 1996.<sup>[302]</sup> In February 2024, the case was sealed.<sup>[29]</sup>

1998–2010: Misdemeanor marijuana charges

Snoop Dogg has also been arrested and fined three times for misdemeanor possession of marijuana: in Los Angeles in 1998;<sup>[303]</sup> Cleveland, Ohio, in 2001;<sup>[304]</sup> and Sierra Blanca, Texas, in 2010.<sup>[305]</sup>

2006–2007: Airport arrests and convictions

On April 26, 2006, Snoop Dogg and members of his entourage were arrested after being turned away from British Airways' first class lounge at Heathrow Airport in London. Snoop Dogg and his party were denied entry to the lounge due to some members flying in economy class. After being escorted outside, the group got in a fight with the police and vandalized a duty-free shop.<sup>[306]</sup> Seven police officers were injured during the incident. After a night in jail, Snoop Dogg and the other men were released on bail the next day but he was unable to perform a scheduled concert in Johannesburg.<sup>[307]</sup>

In September 2006, Snoop Dogg was detained at John Wayne Airport in Orange County, California, by airport security after airport screeners found a collapsible police baton in his carry-on bag. Donald Etra, Snoop Dogg's lawyer, told deputies the baton was a prop for a musical sketch. Snoop Dogg was sentenced to three years' probation and 160 hours of community service for the incident, starting in September 2007.<sup>[308]</sup> He was arrested again in October 2006 at Bob Hope Airport in Burbank after being stopped for a traffic infraction; he was arrested for possession of a firearm and for suspicion of transporting an unspecified amount of marijuana, according to a police statement.<sup>[309]</sup> The following month, after taping an appearance on The Tonight Show with Jay Leno, he was arrested again for possession of marijuana, cocaine and a firearm. Two members of his entourage, according to the Burbank police statement, were admitted members of the Rollin' 20s Crips gang and were arrested on separate charges.<sup>[310]</sup> In April 2007, he was given a three-year suspended sentence, five years' probation and 800 hours of community service after pleading no contest to two felony charges of drug and gun possession by a convicted felon. He was also prohibited from hiring anyone with a criminal record or gang affiliation as a security guard, talent manager or driver.<sup>[280]</sup>

2015: Sweden arrest for illegal drug possession

Snoop Dogg, after performing for a concert in Uppsala, Sweden, on July 25, 2015, was pulled over and detained by Swedish police for allegedly using illegal drugs, violating a Swedish law enacted in 1988 which criminalized the recreational use of such substances – therefore making even being under the influence of any illegal/controlled substance a crime itself without possession. During the detention he was taken to the police station to perform a drug test and was released shortly afterwards. The rapid test was positive for traces of narcotics and he was potentially subject to fines depending on the results of more detailed analysis.<sup>[311][312]</sup> Although final results "strongly" indicated drug use the charges were ultimately dropped because it could not be proven that he was in Sweden when he consumed the substances.<sup>[313]</sup> The rapper uploaded several videos on the social networking site Instagram criticizing the police for alleged racial profiling; police spokesman Daniel Nilsson responded to the accusations, saying: "we don't work like that in Sweden". He declared in the videos, "Niggas got me in the back of police car right now in Sweden, cuz", and "Pulled a nigga over for nothing, taking us to the station where I've got to go pee in a cup for nothin'. I ain't done nothin'. All I did was came to the country and did a concert and now I've got to go to the police station. For nothin'!". He announced to his Swedish fanbase that he would never again go on tour in the country because of the incident.<sup>[314][315][316]</sup>

Civil

2005: Alleged assault of a fan and lawsuit

Snoop Dogg, Compton rapper Jayceon "the Game" Taylor and group Tha Dogg Pound, were sued for assaulting a fan on stage at a May 2005 concert at the White River Amphitheatre in Auburn, Washington. The accuser, Richard Monroe Jr., claimed he was beaten by the artists' entourage while mounting the stage. He alleged that he reacted to an "open invite" to come on stage. Before he could, Snoop Dogg's bodyguards grabbed him and beat him into unconsciousness.<sup>[317]</sup> He claimed attack by crew members; Snoop Dogg and Taylor were included in the suit for not intervening, but both parties denied ever having any involvement.<sup>[318][319][320]</sup> The lawsuit focused on a pecuniary claim of $22 million in punitive and compensatory damages, battery, negligence, and intentional infliction of emotional distress.<sup>[321]</sup> The concerned parties appeared in court in April 2009; Snoop Dogg was cleared of the lawsuit in May. However, Snoop's label Doggy Style Records was found liable.<sup>[322]</sup>

2016: Death Row bankruptcy case and compensation loss

In May 2016, through the Death Row Records bankruptcy case, Snoop Dogg lost $2 million.<sup>[323]</sup>

Sexual assault lawsuits

In January 2005, Snoop Dogg was sued by a makeup artist who claimed that Snoop Dogg and several others drugged and raped her backstage at a Jimmy Kimmel Live! taping in 2003.<sup>[324]</sup> Snoop Dogg had filed an extortion lawsuit against the woman a month before she brought her case. In August 2005 the two parties settled, with the accuser stating "the matter has been resolved amicably", and Snoop Dogg's representative stating no money was exchanged.

In February 2022, a woman sued Snoop Dogg for $10 million, alleging that he sexually assaulted her in May 2013 following a concert in Anaheim, California.<sup>[325][326][327]</sup> Only a few months after its filing, the suit was withdrawn, then reintroduced in July.<sup>[328]</sup> In May 2023, court documents revealed that the case had been dismissed.<sup>[329]</sup>

Regional or international banishments

2006–2010: United Kingdom

On May 15, 2006, after his arrest on vandalism charges in London, the region's Home Office decided that Snoop Dogg would be denied entry to the United Kingdom for the foreseeable future and his British visa was denied the following year.<sup>[330][331][332]</sup> As of March 2010, however, Snoop Dogg was allowed back into the UK.<sup>[333]</sup> The entire group was banned from British Airways "for the foreseeable future".<sup>[334]</sup> According to Snoop Dogg, Queen Elizabeth II overturned the ban, saying: "This man has done nothing in our country. He can come."<sup>[335][336][337]</sup>

2007–2008: Australia

In April 2007, the Australian Department of Immigration and Citizenship banned Snoop Dogg from entering the country on character grounds, citing his prior criminal convictions.<sup>[338]</sup> He had been scheduled to appear at the MTV Australia Video Music Awards on April 29, 2007.<sup>[339]</sup> The Australian DIAC lifted the ban in September 2008 and had granted him a visa to tour Australia. The DIAC said: "In making this decision, the department weighed his criminal convictions against his previous behaviour while in Australia, recent conduct – including charity work – and any likely risk to the Australian community ... We took into account all relevant factors and, on balance, the department decided to grant the visa".<sup>[340]</sup> He later visited for the 2014 Big Day Out festival, the 2023 "I Wanna Thank Me Tour" and provided entertainment for the 2025 AFL Grand Final.<sup>[341][342]</sup>

2012–2014: Norway

Snoop Dogg was banned from entering Norway for two years in July 2012 after entering the country the month before in possession of 8 grams (0.3 oz) of marijuana and an undeclared 227,000 Norwegian kroner in cash, or about US$29,400 in 2022 terms.<sup>[343][344][345]</sup>

Awards and legacy

The Washington Post, Billboard, and NME have called him a "West Coast icon",<sup>[346][347][348]</sup> and Press-Telegram, "an icon of gangsta rap".<sup>[349]</sup> In 2006, Vibe magazine called him "The King of the West Coast".<sup>[350]</sup> ABC News journalist Paul Donoghue, cited him among the 1990s acts that took hip-hop into the pop music charts.<sup>[351]</sup> Snoop Dogg received the BMI Icon Award in 2011.<sup>[352]</sup> In 2023, he was inducted into the Songwriters Hall of Fame.<sup>[353]</sup> Time magazine named Snoop Dogg one of the 100 most influential people of 2025.<sup>[354]</sup>

Snoop Dogg popularized the use of -izzle speak particularly in the pop and hip-hop music industry.<sup>[355]</sup> A type of infix, it first found popularity when used by Frankie Smith in his 1981 hit song "Double Dutch Bus".<sup>[356]</sup> The Guardian's Rob Fitzpatrick has credited his album Doggystyle for proving that rappers "could reinvent themselves", expanding rap's vocabulary, changing hip-hop fashions, and helping introduce a hip-hop genre called G-funk to a new generation.<sup>[357]</sup> The album has been cited as an influence by rapper Kendrick Lamar,<sup>[358]</sup> while fellow rappers Schoolboy Q and Maxo Kream have also cited him as an influence.<sup>[359][360]</sup>
